October 1999 Special Session Assembly Bill 1

1

AN ACT ^{sen cat} relating to: the onetime sales tax rebate.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under ~~current law~~ and subject to a number of conditions and limitations, a claimant may claim, or is eligible to receive, a onetime sales tax rebate. Under this bill, an individual who was a nonresident of this state in 1998 is not eligible to receive a rebate if the individual's spouse is eligible to receive a rebate under the bill. Under ~~current law~~, a nonresident who can document at least $20 of sales taxes paid to Wisconsin in 1998 may claim a rebate of 30.4% of sales taxes paid in that year, up to a maximum rebate of $354. Under the bill, a nonresident who can document at least $20 of sales taxes paid to Wisconsin in 1998 may claim a rebate of 30.4% of sales taxes paid in that year, up to a maximum rebate of $273. The bill also refers to the sales tax rebate as a onetime rebate of nonbusiness consumer sales tax.

The bill prohibits state agencies from considering receipt by an individual of the sales tax rebate in determining the individual's eligibility for a state-funded grant, loan, monetary assistance or other benefit or in determining the amount or extent of that grant, loan, monetary assistance or other benefit. The prohibition applies to the month of the receipt and the month immediately following. In addition, the bill requires the department of health and family services (DHFS) to request a waiver of federal medicaid laws to authorize DHFS to disregard receipt of the sales tax rebate in determining eligibility for medical assistance. The bill also requires state agencies to disregard receipt by an individual of the sales tax rebate in determining the individual's eligibility for a federally funded grant, loan, monetary assistance or other benefit or in determining the amount or extent of that grant, loan, monetary assistance or other benefit, to the extent permitted under federal law.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
